We are happy to have anyone copy from us so long as proper credit is given to the original publisher . However, please note that the article here in by Burwell Jones M.D. is copy righted and you must have his personal permission to copy . Namely " Why doesn't Sam Swim ? " .

FLORIDA ASSOCIATION

Catie Cooper reports that our memberships is a 784 , however there have been several more registrations so that we may be near the magic 800.

Catie would appreciate it if you registrars would at the very least include correct age on renewal applications . Better still fill in completely so that address changes will not be overlooked . It is also suggested that ALL registrations be mailed as soon as possible .

Chris Carey has been helping Mille Hupp with records as both Millie and Chris have been stressed with family health situations . We hope these problems have improved .

Lately we hear repeated comments on the cost of swimming , just meet expenses , not travel lodging etc. Noted in New England S.C. Championship entry "Personal copy of results $3.00". The Georgia Masters S.C. State meet. Entry fee $10. including a Long sleeve T shirt .+ event fees of course . On the other hand Minnesota runs meets with a $1. total fee . No awards , however . La. $3.00 Ind. $12. relays

Those who knew Gordon Selby will be regretful to hear at this late date the he passed away January 18 . Gordon was a real supporter and participant in Masters swimming . Never admitted he would not be back competing when it was impossible . He is missed .

GEORGE BOLE , our coach,SPM , has asked that all swimmers planning on the meet in Toronto be advised that he will be there and available to all who would like his help in any way . George also ventured that it would be good if all Florida swimmers stuck together as there are groups which will be together as teams .

From HAROLD

The 15th Southern Regional Short Course Meet on March 29.30.31, 1985 was attended by 320 swimmers from as far away as Ontario,Canada, and New England. Approximately 250 were from other teams and the balance from SPM. Many of our team members , their families and friends , as well as members of visiting teams , worked very hard in timing , scoring , awards , hospitality , etc. I would like to express my appreciation to them and also to the officials and members of the pool staff who put in long hours . Thank you , everyone .

This should start at 9:30 and continue with an event on the 15 minute intervals .

From June Krausers team newsletter (not to be confused with Swim Master) Anne McGuire - Anne and her husband Jim are visiting in Australia for 6 months . Anne writes that she went to their National Championships and won all of her events . She did mention that she likes a Krauser run meet better , Seems as if they broke for tea and when they resumed and ran out of time they just ran the heats left over at the beginning of the next day . Also, she couldn't won any awards or get any points and even though she was winning , she managed Lane 1 most of the time . They had 550 people and so it was a pretty big meet . "

Your Editor was told essentially the same story by a swimmer in his age group, Dave Rowan , who swam in the 1983 Australian Championships .

However the six of from the U.S. who swam in the 1984 Australian meet could not have been treated , awarded or be friendlier welcomed anywhere . 4 of us won age group medals and were awarded them at the final dinner as our competitors . We were given certificates of events and patches and more . Apparently it is the discretion of the meet director . We swam in Melbourne , 85 was in the Capitol , Canberra .

Which leads me to say again that I feel that in a meet designated as a "National Championship " at which we welcome international swimmers we should give duplicate medals when non-US swimmers are medal earners . In an "International Meet " it should be one medal per place .

Why Doesn't Sam Swim?

By
Burwell (Bumpy) Jones, M.D.
Sarasota, Florida

I have been involved in swimming in one form or another since learning to swim at age two. I have also been a golfer for the past 20 years and have participated in a number of state and national tournaments. Golf is a delightful and difficult game and many of my friends are people that I have met through golf and golf activities. Golf is a game that takes a great amount of time to play, which may be good for a retired person, but difficult for a working person. It is generally an expensive avocation. It's greatest problem, however, is that it is a poor form of exercise and for a population that dearly needs physical output, it is quite inadequate. For those who believe in the value of the exercise of golf, one can quote Betram Russell, who may have been the first to say, "it's a good way to ruin a nice walk in the country."

As a physician who has been involved with masters swimming since its beginning in the early 1970's, I have a strong belief in the great physical and emotional benefits of swimming and swimming competition. My relationships with my golfing friends who are often my patients is interesting, since, often golfers are in the poorest physical condition that can be imagined and have the poorest health habits possible. All this is possible while playing golf on a daily basis. Most golfers are completely unaware of their miserable conditioning and are unaware of how to improve their health. Most are unaware of masters programs in sports such as swimming and even when informed are unwilling to consider a daily exercise program until some physical problem occurs. Sometimes, nothing will stimulate them into changing habits.

Thus my story of Sam.

Sam has been a patient in my practice of Dermatology since he moved to Florida six years ago. He retired from a large corporation and moved to Sarasota to pursue the good life and especially to play golf. Since he is a fair skinned, blue-eyed man and has a great deal of sun exposure in his life, his skin problems continue with increasingly frequent keratoses and cancers of his exposed skin (a common problem in Florida for this type of person but problems that are quite controllable with proper care and periodic examinations.) Sam's problems, however, are more than his keratoses. Sam in six years has been able to nearly destroy himself. While working in the North, Sam had only time for golf once or twice a week for a few months of the year. He was also saved by the lousy winter weather for four months of the year, so that he actually used his local Y.M.C.A. pool during these months. Business and company pressure made him keep his weight under fair control and even though business and social pressures made alcoholic intake a near necessity, this too was relatively well controlled. Sam had done some high school swimming but was too busy for collegiate swimming. He was active in his fraternity and did compete in yearly inter-fraternity meets. He remembers that each year the swimming got harder (and slower). He also remembers how impressed some of his friends were with his swimming ability at the Y.M.C.A. during his business years.

Then the glorious years of retirement---a golf course community, golf every day and all that goes with it.

Sam was really an average player by standards of tournament play and generally carried a 12 to 14 handicap. This means an average score of around 85, generally higher in tournaments and lower with his friends. He loved the bravado and hype of the golf gamblers on the course and often was the "life of the party" at the social events. His long suffering wife, Marge, was terrible at golf but quite happy with the constant social golfing whirl of their new life. She actually thought Sam was quite wonderful at golf and was happy to get him out of the house. She also played with him in a number of mixed golfing events each month which was more than she had seen of him in years.

In our area, we have approximately 50 golf courses and each has its own group of players. Some people may play more than one course and play with more than one group on different days. Sam played regularly on two courses and occasionally on several others. The course where Sam and I generally play, has developed a rather standard ritual of week-end play, which is repeated on at least one work-day afternoon for those who are employed and two or three week-days for those non-employed or retired. Many male golfers also play on certain days with their wives in mixed events. Thus, golf can fill a seven day week.

The usual ritual on Saturday, is to arrive at the course about 9 a.m. and assemble in the clubhouse where the aches and pains are announced, the bets are made and the weekly affairs of state are settled. Many of the good-old-boys get well fortified with coffee and cigarettes. Often a bloody mary (vodka and tomato juice) or brandy is added to the coffee (this is a favorite of Sam's to "settle his putting nerves"). Since this is a private club, the amounts of liquor are rarely measured as in a standard bar and a drink may contain from two to four ounces of alcohol. (I might mention that as a master swimmer, I usually swim a brief work-out of 1500-2000 yards before I meet my "friends"--on one occasion, Sam announced after hearing of my early morning work-outs, "don't pay attention to Jones, he's nuts.")

Now the group moves to the cart-storage area (no walkers, please), progresses to the practice area, makes last minute group bets and starts the days play. Sam and most of the group load their carts with five or six beers each (for the first nine holes) and drink their way around the course. After nine holes, Sam usually picks up a large plastic cup of vodka, mix and six more beers. This gets the group through the first 18 holes and into lunch. Lunch is a sandwich and a couple more beers. Now the bets are doubled, an emergency nine is proclaimed, Sam picks up four to six more beers and heads out ready for battle. After the emergency nine bets are settled, the losers buy and the hard liquor flows. By now it is usually around 5 o'clock and Sam has to run because the frequent cocktail party starts at six and he has to pick up Marge, who has been playing at another course. So, Sam showers, dresses and picks up a "doggy bag" (a plastic cup from the bar) with vodka and mix to drink on the way. This party, of course, precedes more drinks with dinner, wine and maybe a nightcap or two of brandy. Remember Sam is retired and can do this several days a week. (After a golf day, I usually meet the master swimmers at six p.m., for the team work-out and needless to say, I've had to avoid the day long libations, but remember, Sam says I'm nuts!)

Sometimes the ritual changes with the monthly "stag" day. On this day the activities are much the same except the club supports the day with booze on the course and a dinner after. The group frequently stays well into the night playing cards and, of course, drinking. Since Sam belongs to two clubs, he usually has two stags a month. Sam belongs to assorted golf organizations, which are responsible for running tournaments during the year. These tournaments which occur about every two months are two to four day hard binges and our club tries to send its best drinking team.

A calculation of the intake of alcohol of Sam and friends demonstrates a group of hard-core alcoholics, which is common around golf. Each would be quick to deny this fact, especially Sam, who truly seems to have a cast iron constitution. Nevertheless, Sam is a hard-core alcoholic but a good friend and we have played a lot of golf together. On a number of occasions, I have tried to penetrate Sam's mind, which strangely is still sound.

"Sam, why don't you swim?", I have often asked.

"Oh, Bump, don't start with all that exercise crap. I got enough of all those laps in high school," he would exclaim as he cracked open a beer.

"Come on Sam, try a few laps with us some afternoon and hold the beer until afterward", I would plead.

"Bump, I've got a pool at home and can swim there anytime.

"Ya, Sam, and the only thing you do with your 30 foot puddle is to serve drinks at cocktail parties around it."

So went the usual banter, which over the years became kind of a word game between us.

Actually, I did get Sam in a pool, once. At a golf tournament there was a 20 yard pool and Sam was so hungover he could hardly function, so as an emergency measure I got him into the water to clear his head for the days play. Surprisingly, Sam could swim well and was a lot better swimmer than golfer. His stroke mechanics were solid and there was some real speed for a short distance. His endurance was horrible and a few laps set up spasms of coughing as lung areas were cleared that had probably been clogged for years. Sam actually showed off a little for me with a couple of good flip turns and finished with a good one length sprint.

"Sam, I said, "you looked great, if a couple of lengths can cure that head, think what regular work-outs might do."

"Ya know, Bump, you might be right, I should work a little of this gut off."

"And cut out some of the fire-water, Sam," I added. Actually, I was ecstatic, for the first time a dent was showing in Sam and maybe Sam might help save himself. No luck, my evangelism and Sam's repentance lasted only through that round of golf. Sam played without any alcohol and played terribly, even for Sam. Afterward, while downing his fourth scotch, he proclaimed that "never again will I play naked".

In recent months, I have concentrated on masters swimming training and have little time or desire to play golf, so I lost contact with Sam and some of my un-washed golfing friends. Some time ago I saw Sam in my office. His previous cancer areas were doing fine and only minimal current skin damage was present, but Sam looked terrible. He had put on more weight and now wore his belt under his belly like many pear-shaped golfers. He now had a long list of medications for his multiple diseases which included gout and hypertension. Even worse was his physical appearance which demonstrated the ashen color often seen in those with significant cardiovascular problems.

"Sam, your skin is fine and should be O.K. for another six months but you're a mess, otherwise," I exclaimed. "I'd like to talk to Tom (his internist) and have him do some heart studies."

"Don't bother Bump," he said, "I saw him last week; he did an EKG and a bunch of tests and like you, he wants me to get more exercise. So, I told him I'll play golf everyday." He laughed at his little joke.

I know Sam's internist and he is an excellent physician, but he doesn't play golf and surely has no idea of Sam's normal golf routine.

"Sam", I said, "what about the booze"?

"Oh, I've got that under control", he lied.

Thus, ended the visit.

Some weeks later, Sam had his heart attack on the golf course. It was a massive infarction and nearly killed him. A combination of good luck and excellent care has so far allowed him to survive. His wife, Marge, insists he has quit smoking and "cut way down on the booze". He has enrolled at the cardiac rehabilitation program at the local Y and I have tried to give him encouragement to stick to the program. Unfortunately, their drop out rate is terribly high and with Sam they have their hands full. Interestingly, many machines are being used for Sam's rehabilitation but not the pool, even though swimming may be the best rehabilitation exercise in the world.

Why didn't Sam swim? Why don't all Sams of the world swim? Why doesn't Sam's wife, Marge, swim? Why do people let their obesity, hypertension, heart disease and bad habits destroy their lives? They can continue their golf, bridge or stamp collecting to their heart's delight but should not confuse games of pleasure with the needed cardio-vascular exercise. Strangely, they would do all things better and longer with a daily exercise program and some moderation in their lives.

I do not know the answers to these questions but I know a great number of people like Sam. Their problems are not that they eat too much, drink too much and just don't exercise. Their problems are a lack of basic education as to how to live. They have no real concept of good nutrition, good health or a proper exercise level. They live in a society where all their bad habits are accepted as normal. Unfortunately, most of these people are never exposed to alternative patterns.

A prologue to this story is interesting. Sam's wife, Marge, was in the office a few weeks after Sam suffered his coronary and filled me in on the details of his "rehabilitation". Towards the end of our visit she said, "Well, Sam's troubles sure blows holes in your theory about exercise, doesn't it?"

"What do you mean, Marge?" I asked.

"I mean, well, here's poor Sam, and he exercises all the time, why he plays golf nearly every day, sometimes even 27 holes and look, he ends up with the heart and liver trouble."

In my astonishment, I had no comment for poor misguided Marge.

1985 SOUTHERN REGIONAL SHORT COURSE

CHAMPIONSHIPS

From the point of view of the home team things went pretty well . We received a great deal of cooperation from all sides . Jim Kiernan and his wife Nancy and BURGER KING made a substantial contribution by feeding and watering all the officials and workers . We really appreciated that . As Harold has noted we had help from visiting swimmers , their families , friends et al . It seems to have become increasingly necessary in a larger meet that we all pitch in a little .

The water may have been a degree or two warm but actually the highest was Friday night at 81 . There seems to have been some thought by some of the swimmers that the officials were a bit hasty in using their DQ power...those at the end of the pool. Perfection is hard to come by . Swimmers try to swim correctly and the officials try to see that they do .
